Henry Sydnor Harrison, maker of stories, talked to the members of the Woman's Club yesterday, afternoon, and a tremendous gathering it was that thronged the pretty parlors of the club to welcome him home again. Mr. Harrison has written his name in shining letters on the walls of great achievement, and Ms return to Richmond this past week has taken the form of a real ovation.

"In Defense of Best Sellers" was the subject chosen for his address before the club, and, as Murray M. McGuire stated in his introduction of the creator of Dr. Queed, Mr. Harrison has a knowledge of a best seller from his own experience of an applauding public.

BY LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Lord Doune, attains his majority a few weeks hence, has presented, in conjunction with the latter, an appeal to the Scottish courts, for permission to disentall his vast landed estates in the counties of Elgin, Nairn, Inverness, Perth, Fife and Kirkcudbright, with a view to their sale, on the ground that the onerous taxation of land imposed by the present government renders real estate an extraord read of Scotland in Hoiyrood Palace, a connection with the general election for a new Parliament, he voices a protest. This protest, which has been heard for more than 200 years past at each election at Holyrood, is invariably couched as follows:

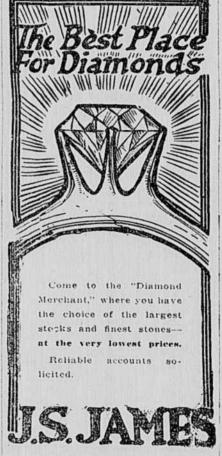

"I, the Earl of Moray, declare that the Earl of Moray or admitted to vote in this election of peers next in order to the Earl of Calibross, and prior in order to me, the Earl of Moray."

The origin of the claim is found in the fact that the first Earl of Moray, Regent of Scotland, was created Earl Roanoke, Va., April 21.—Mrs. Thomas ent government renders real estate an extremely unprofitable investment,

Yet he is not only one of the largest landowners, but one of the richest peers in Scotland, being the ground landlord of a considerable portion of the city of Edinburgh,

His present affluence is all the more remarkable when it is borne in mind that his childhood was spent in most father, a country parson, died a poor man, having been compelled to raise his family of three sons and a daughter on the meagre income of $$00 a year. The death, of the fourteenth earl, a distant cousin, brought the parson's three sons in turn to the title out issue, and the third being the present earl, who has also three sons, of whom Lord Doune is the eldest. The second one will, on the attainment of his majority a couple of years hence, come into an independent fortune of his own, namely, the Gray estates, in Fifeshire and Forfarshire. The so-called Gray estates are held in a somewhat peculiar way, and were settled as a provision for the second son of the Enris of Morny, same way as the Cromlix property, near Dunblane, is always in the possession of a cadet of the Kinnoull branch of the house of Hay.
